DR. H. A. VEDDER BOWLS

300 SCORE THURSDAY

Marshallfield Herald: But few things in the annals of bowling history, and especially in this neck of the woods, has a perfect score been recorded. But it was made at the Baglio alleys Thursday night by Dr. H. A. Vedder of this city in a match game between members of the Marshallfield Bowling Association who were at the alleys for a final game following a banquet to celebrate the closing of the bowling season. It came at a most opportune time as nearly every member of last winter's league was present and witnessed the feat.

Vedder's hits were all clean and every ball he rolled cleared the alley of pins—every one of the twelve were strikes. His performance can be considered doubly wonderful as the score was made in rolling on four different alleys, three balls on an alley.

In rolling 300 Vedder wins a $25 suit of overcoat and a $3.75 bathing suit, prizes hung up by Merchant Louis Laetie.

PATRIOTIC WORK BY

LOCAL SOCIETIES

In compliance with the suggestion from Herbert Hoover that the women of the country concentrate their patriotic efforts on the conservation of food, such as canning, preserving, salting and drying, the women of this state are now mobilizing their forces—mothers, daughters and granddaughters—to utilize the immense quantities of food which we have this summer.

The local Equal Suffrage Association, Mrs. Guy Nash, president, has taken up the work and has secured the services of Miss Emma Conley of the Home Economics of the University of Wisconsin and chairman of the Food Commission of Wisconsin, State Suffrage Association.

Miss Conley will give here next Monday and Tuesday, June 18 and 19, two lectures on the cold pack and pressure process of canning vegetables and fruits. The lectures are as follows:

Lecture 1. Conservation of food, food, clothing, retrenchment so that money may be saved for poor relief work, red cross work, aiding of families of soldiers, and for the purchase of Liberty bonds.

Lecture 2. Exchange, substitution, and nutritive value of foods; study of foods essential for growth, energy and maintenance.

Lecture 3. Training the family budget with special reference to war conditions.

Lecture 4. Canning, storing and drying foods. Demonstration of the cold pack method, using water-bath and pressure process.

Lecture 5. Discussion of municipal market and other methods of marketing garden products during summer and fall.

All meetings will be held in the Lincoln Normal Training building. The morning lectures will be at 2:30; the afternoon at 7:30.

Every morning, housekeeper, daughter and maid is invited and urged to attend these lectures. Come and learn how to feed your family cheaper and better.

Let us learn what and where we can substitute cheaper for more costly foods, nutritious for non-nutritious foods, and let us learn how to can and dry this great accumulation of garden stuff we will have on hand as the season advances.

These lectures are all free. Every woman in the county is asked to take advantage of this most unusual opportunity.

LIBERTY BOND CAMPAIGN

A meeting was held at the Elk Club Monday evening which was attended by representative citizens from all over the southern part of the county at which the Liberty bond proposition was explained to those present.

S. B. Seaton, representing the Federal Reserve banks was present and gave the necessity of buying these bonds.

Since the county a campaign for the sale of the bonds has been made in this city and many have subscribed. The bonds are as low as $50 in denomination, so that they are within the reach of nearly all.

While the making of a few of the bonds is looked upon more as a patriotic duty than a money-making investment, while at the same time they give some return for the money invested.

The banks of the city have agreed to loan amounts up to $500 on the bonds, carrying the loan until the end of the year at the rate of interest paid by the bond. Under these conditions it is possible for nearly every person that wants to get one of the bonds, and still not work any hardship.

REMAINS BROUGHT HERE

The remains of Newton Mills, a former resident of this city, were brought here from Chicago, Pa., yesterday and buried in Forest Hill cemetery. Mr. Mills was a machinist by trade and worked in this city in the early days, but left here about 25 years ago and resided at Chicago, and for the past few years has been retired from active life. He was a 32nd degree Mason, and the members of the fraternity turned out and assisted in the last rites.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Hager and the Misses Mary Jones and Marion Jackson spent several days the past week at the Waupaca lakes with a camping party.

RUDOLPH WOMAN

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Mrs. Charles Barker of the town of Rudolph attempted to commit suicide in the Potter restaurant Friday by taking strychnine, but owing probably to the fact that assistance was not so far as the strychnine was concerned, and has since recovered her usual health.

Mrs. Barker came to town with her husband, they looking after some financial matters in the morning, and had agreed to meet Mr. Barker at the Potter restaurant. She went to that place, and while sitting at one of the tables it was noticed that she was acting in a queer manner, and the waitress asked her what was the matter, and the woman stated that she had taken poison. Dr. Mortenson happened to be in the restaurant at the time and he immediately responded to the call to assistance, and sending to the drug store for what he wanted, immediately took the case in hand.

The woman was taken at once to the new hospital where she was given the proper care and it was not long before everything possible had been done and she was on the road to recovery.

The woman had in her possession a small bottle of strychnine, and stated that she had taken two doses of the drug, and there is no question but that she would have died had it not been for the fact that assistance was close at hand.

THE FIFTY DOLLAR BOND

In issuing Liberty Loan Bonds in a denomination as small as $50 the Secretary of the United States Treasury has put it in the reach of almost every American citizen to do a real and actual service to his country.

Not all can fight, not all can render personal service in other ways, but those who are denied the privilege of serving their country in person have the privilege of serving her by lending their money to win her victories.

But it is not patriotism alone that urges the buying of Liberty Loan Bonds. Thrift and wise economy in investing small savings commend these Liberty Loan Bonds to small investors. They are safe, and considering their tax-free quality—free from all federal, state and local taxes (inheritance taxes excepted) and free from any war tax that may hereafter be levied, affording an absolutely net income of 3 1/2%, they constitute an ideal investment for savings.

For is there any reason for waiting for a later bond issue in the expectation of a higher rate of interest being obtained, for the law provides that should such bonds be issued later, Liberty Loan Bonds may be exchanged for them at par.

ANOTHER KING ABDUCTED

Styles in Europe have changed within the past few months, and while we were formerly considered an outfit for a king to hang onto his job until Father Time had robbed him of all his teeth and the greater part of his five senses, it is now getting to be quite the thing for them to step down and out while in the prime of life. The latest to conform with the latest fad is King Constantine of Greece, who abdicated the throne on Tuesday in favor of his second son, Prince Alexander.

He was never been intimate with King Constantine, and really don't know whether Constantine was his first or last name, but suppose he was, because he always called him by that name. The newspaper correspondents could not spell his last name. Greece is a small country in the southern part of Europe, and it hadn't been for the war we would probably have known whether they were democrats or Presbyterians over there, but war is certainly a great educator, especially along geographical lines. There was a day, some years ago, when Greece was the world's art and sculpture of the world, but it has been some time now since they have pulled down any of the prizes in the sculpting line, and judging by what comes to the fore in the name of Greece, it is not likely to be in fruit or black shoes for a living.

Greece is also to blame for much of this mythological dope with which they have been starting ancient histories in the past. Outside of this the country is right.

It seems that King Constantine has not decided to take up farming for a living, but intends to make his home in London. If he does, he will tell him of his good place to start a fruit store.

Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFUL

The campaign by the local business men for the purpose of raising $2000 in this city as our share of the $3,000,000 that it is proposed to raise by the Y.M.C.A. was eminently successful, inasmuch as considerable more than this amount was paid in or promised for payment in the future.

The matter here was handled in a systematic manner and a house to house canvass was made and no amount was too small to be taken for the good cause, and the result was that when things had been figured up at the end of the two days campaign it was found that more than had been started out for had been pledged. Beside the amount subscribed in this city, Port Edwards people gave $150 and Nekosia $50.

The work that has been taken up by the Y.M.C.A. is the largest that the association has ever attempted, but the way they have started out would indicate that they were going to make a success of the matter without any trouble whatever so far as the finances are concerned.

CLEVE AKEY WRITES NEWS FROM MONTANA

Bozeman, Mont., 6-9-17
Drumb & Sutor, Grand Rapids, Wis.
Dear Friends:
Having changed my location would like you to send the Tribune to this new address. I expect to be here the rest of the summer. They call it summer here, the same as in country where they have warm weather for several months in the middle portion of the year.

This is as pretty place as I ever was in. Beautiful homes; a fine business section, and good streets. It is about the population of Grand Rapids, and is inhabited by a rare species of mankind—the retired agriculturist—and they are using great care that their money may not all be used up before their great-grandchildren are born.

There is a college here, the state agricultural college, and quite a number of other institutions.

Of course, in the Gallatin Valley where Bozeman is, it doesn't require any special section of the legislature, nor even a course in geometry to raise crops. But the rest of the state isn't so fortunate, so they send them to college to learn how to keep the seed from blowing away after it has been placed in the ground.

The principal crop in this place seems to be automobiles—there are some Fords, too. I counted 175 autos in the parade on Independence day, and only 33 were Fords. Now when a fellow gets to counting automobiles for pastime, you may know it's an exciting town.

I have seen very few people I knew since I left Grand Rapids. Met Henry Voyer several times at Deer Lodge. He has a very good position of the Milwaukee railroad. Have met several railroad men, formerly on the Valley Division.

I would give all the snow-capped mountains for one glimpse of the Old Wisconsin flowing thru Grand Rapids.

There's one thing though, that you have to give Montana credit for. They are boasting all the time. With her natural advantages, Grand Rapids would be a city of 25,000 if she had a few Montana boosters. They spend good money to convince people that sand is as good as soil; that 20° below is ideal weather, and that too much sunshine is bad for the complexion. All you need is a good wind, and you have a good thing. It was a poor country for farming, the same as usual, and feeling fine.

Sincerely yours, C. AKEY.
Bozeman, Montana.

COUNTY GRADUATION

The graduation exercises of eighth grade pupils from the different schools of the county, was held at the Wood County Normal on Tuesday, and there was a large crowd in attendance from all parts of the county. The program in the afternoon was held in the auditorium building and consisted of vocal and instrumental music and addresses by W. W. Clark, M. H. Jackson and W. E. Larson, the latter being inspector of rural schools. The graduates were presented with their diplomas by County Superintendent Geo. A. Varney.

At the noon hour a picnic dinner was served on the school grounds and the day was a very pleasant one for the young people as well as the older ones who had come in from different parts of the county to attend the doings. This plan of having the entire county graduation in one place is new, and it is a fine idea. It is a place of having a small celebration at each school, as it gives the scholars and parents a chance to get together in a way that they would otherwise do, and is enjoyed by all concerned.

Edward Billmyre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Billmyre, has accepted a position in the shoe store of Smith & Luzenski.

The members of the Stevens Point Elk lodge will hold a picnic at Lake Emily on Sunday, June 17th. The affair is given by the Amherst members of the Stevens Point lodge.

A fine of $2,500 or five years in prison, or both, of what awaits "any male citizen between the ages of 18 and 45" who attempts to leave Canada to avoid military service, according to a government order.

Orders releasing more than 1000 young men from camp at Fort Sheridan, is soon to be issued, on account of not coming up to the physical requirements. Many have physical defects, such as color blindness, flat feet, bad hearing, weak eyes, and a few are to be released because they do not show an aptness toward grasping the essential details of the duties which are required of them.

Wm. D. Moyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Moyer of the south side, who has been at Fort Sheridan for some time past, is the first one of the Grand Rapids boys to be transferred, having been assigned to the coast artillery, with headquarters at Washington. Will has the honor of being one out of three from his company who have been selected for active duty.

Because of the great need of cars and other railroad equipment, as well as the work of training men in other lines, the Milwaukee road will not put on special "fish train" service this summer. It is expected a new time card for passenger service will be adopted, probably within a week, to make access to the lake region easier. The road will have summer trains in the north or desire to spend a few days at the resorts.

WISCONSIN RIVER CLAIMS ANOTHER

The Wisconsin River claimed another victim on Sunday afternoon when Morris Kleberg, who was swimming, got beyond his depth and came to his assistance. Searching parties started out at once to look for the boy, but the remains were not recovered until about 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, when Tony Edwards and some others in a boat managed to get hold of the body with grappling irons and brought it to the surface.

Morris Kleberg and August Hogen had gone to Klamath Island Sunday afternoon to go in swimming. At that time the water in the river was very high and a swift current was running even above the dam, where ordinarily the water was very quiet.

It was found that the boy was going to the end of the island and waded out for a short distance, when it is supposed that the current swept Kleberg from his feet and carried him into deep water. Both boys were fairly good swimmers and when Hogen found that he was being carried down river he immediately started for the island again, and managed to make it.

In the meantime Kleberg had drifted far enough from shore so that he was in trouble and called for help. Hogen made an attempt to get to him, but the young fellow sank before anything could be done.

Mr. Kleberg operates a store at Nekosia, and his father, Mr. A. Taylor and Prof. Schwede were on the island and responded to the call for help, but could do nothing toward saving the boy's life, as he had disappeared from sight.

As soon as the news of the drowning spread a large number of people congregated and all the boats available were pressed into service, but it was not until the following afternoon that the body was recovered.

The young man was about 16 years of age and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kleberg, who moved to this city from Nekosia several years ago. Mr. Kleberg operates a store at Nekosia, and his father, Mr. A. Taylor and Prof. Schwede were on the island and responded to the call for help, but could do nothing toward saving the boy's life, as he had disappeared from sight.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon, there being services at the home on the east side, and at the east side Lutheran church where services were conducted by Rev. Paul.

TO AUTOMOBILE OWNERS AND DRIVERS:—Owing to the many complaints received by the police department in regard to speeding, reckless driving and the use of the cut-outs on automobiles, the city of Grand Rapids is warned to observe the law while within the corporate limits of the city of Grand Rapids.

ARMORY MEASURE VETOED BY PHILIPP

GOV. SAYS BILL WOULD PLACE UNNECESSARY BURDEN ON TAXPAYERS.

BUILDING CAN BE DELAYED

Executive Declares Expenditures of $52,000 Annually Should Be Delayed Until After War To Meet Present Calls.

Madison—Gov. Philipp has sent a message to the senate, vetoing the Wilcox bill, appropriating $52,000 annually for the construction of armories for the Wisconsin National Guard. The reasons of the governor for vetoing the bill were that the measure would add to the burden of the taxpayer a sum for military purposes not absolutely necessary at this time when he will be called upon to contribute for war purposes to the limit of his ability to pay, that it would take men from the field of active production where they are sorely needed at the present time, and that it would compel the state to purchase materials for the construction of buildings at a time when the cost thereof is far above normal prices. The senate postponed action on the veto. It is not believed that the bill will be passed over the governor's veto.

TEACHERS' MINIMUM PAY $45

Governor Signs Bill Naming Lowest Salary Under Apportionment of State School Fund.

Madison—The legislature has made possible many school teachers of the state receiving an increase in salary during the coming year. The legislature has passed and the governor has just signed the bill fixing the minimum salary of teachers at $45 a month.

The first minimum salary law was enacted in Wisconsin in 1913 fixing the salary of teachers at not less than $40 a month. School men claim that the minimum salary law has brought better teachers into the profession.

In order to enforce the provision for this minimum salary the law as just signed by the governor provides that "no apportionment of school funds shall be made to any city, village or town" unless the common school shall have been taught by a qualified teacher paid a salary of not less than $45 a month.

Gov. Philipp has also signed the Everitt bill providing for a co-ordination of state work and of departmental co-operation. The law provides that the departments shall exchange information, and may jointly employ or make assignments of employees as the best interests of the public service require.

WANT STATE SUPERVISION

Many Cities of Wisconsin Petition Legislature Favoring Rail Commission Power.

Madison—Upwards of a dozen cities of the state have petitioned the legislature in favor of the Wilcox bill, giving the state railroad commission power to order extension of street railway lines, when the commission is satisfied that the best interests of the community will be served by the extension. The senate has just passed the Wilcox bill on this subject. A similar bill, authored by Assemblyman D. S. Burnett of Marathon county, passed in the assembly, but was non-concurred in by the senate some time ago, before the facts regarding the introduction of the bill were known.

The commission has the power to order the extension of water and gas mains, but the power to order the extension of street car lines has never been conferred on the commission. Senator Wilcox says there is much need for legislation of this character in many of the cities in northern Wisconsin. The cities of Madison and Wausau have shown great interest in the measure, and should the bill pass applications for extensions of the lines in these cities will probably be made.

Madison—On June 20 President Charles R. Van Hise will present 872 diplomas to seniors at the commencement exercises of the University of Wisconsin.

The feature of this year's commencement will be the great number of seniors who will be graduated in absentia. It is estimated that approximately 100 will be mailed to over 300 men graduates. Over this number have already left for some sort of war service, more than 200 being at Fort Sheridan. President Van Hise is negotiating with the commandant at the fort to see if it will be possible to get the seniors who are in training there to come back for graduation. Measure Provides for an Annual Fund of $18,000 for Tuberculosis Survey of the State.

The bill has passed the assembly and is now in the senate. It provides for the annual appropriation of $18,000 for two years to make a survey of the state and to provide for testing cattle by areas. This is a new policy.

The plan for a clean-up of bovine tuberculosis in Wisconsin is backed by Agriculture Commissioner C. P. Morgard. It is admitted that the plan is but experimental, but under it is hoped by the department to discover ways of controlling the disease.

Madison—The senate, under suspension of the rules, has passed the Reinholdt bill, giving the Wisconsin railroad commission authority to establish grades for railroads to be built in the city of Milwaukee and other cities in the state, and establish grades for approaches and bridges across such tracks. The purpose of the bill, Senator Reinholdt said, was to have grades for railroads to be built in the future established so that as a city developed, it would not be necessary to separate the grades, as is now necessary in the case of old railroad tracks. He said that the bill would be of special benefit to the west and southwest parts of the city of Milwaukee, where new roads were to be built soon, and new grades for present tracks were to be established.

These chosen as completely organized have selected local agents in each county, with but one or two trade centers, are being handled by the agricultural representatives.

INDIANS ANXIOUS TO FIGHT

Chippewas at Odanah Reservation Want to Raise Company and Go to France.

Madison—The first Americans who inhabited the Odanah reservation are beating Tom Toms and doing their old Indian war dance, with modern trimmings. They want to go to war; they want to be among the first to plant the Stars and Stripes on the firing line in France, and if Adj. Gen. Orlando Holway will accept them, they will raise a company of infantry for the Wisconsin National Guard.

Assemblyman John C. Chapple, Ashland, called on Gen. Holway and told him that the Chippewa Indians at the Odanah reservation are willing to serve in the world war. The Indians will raise a company within twenty-four hours, he said. They are especially anxious to enlist as one unit and not be scattered throughout the guard, Mr. Chapple explained. Gen. Holway took the matter under advisement.

This advance is in addition to an increase granted in April, making a total raise for the season of 40 cents a day.

NATION ENROLLS OVER 10,000,000 FOR ARMY DRAFT

Young Men of Country Swamp Polls to Register.

NEW CHANCE TO REGISTER

5,000,000 Are Listed Who Will Probably Not Be Liable to Draft—Time Extended to Complete Roll Before Selection Begins.

Washington, June 7.—One-half of the men registering for service under the draft act are claiming exemption from service. It was learned at the office of the Provost Marshal General Crowder on Wednesday. As only a small percentage of the claims will be allowed, it is believed the total number available will not be materially reduced.

Two States Exceed Estimates. In two states the actual registration exceeds the census estimates by large figures. In Pennsylvania the response was particularly heavy and caused great gratification at the war department. The census estimate for the Keystone state was given as 879,378 and the actual registration figures were 950,800. Vermont, too, exceeded the census estimate by more than 1,000. The other states heard from dropped behind the estimated returns but only by small margins in most cases except Rhode Island.

With the total registration in excess of 10,000,000, the "probable exemptions" are about 5,000,000.

Full official returns from Delaware showed a registration of 21,804, of which 11,651 other claimed exemption. They were classed as "probable exemptions." Under the census estimates Delaware should have registered 23,825. Only 92 alien enemies registered in Delaware.

Extend Time to Register

So heavy was the registration that in many places it could not be completed Tuesday night. Provost Marshal General Crowder announced that the government would adopt a liberal policy "for the next few days," and that all who had failed to register on Tuesday, but could show good faith, should have another opportunity to place their names on the roll of honor.

This stand was taken also so that the registration could be made complete before the selection for service begins. All who failed to register Tuesday and who allow this second opportunity to pass by will be dealt with vigorously.

Complete returns from New Jersey, the first to come in, show registration of 302,863. The estimates by the census bureau was 300,563. Governors of Missouri and Ohio stated that their reports would be delayed because of storms.

Mayor Armstrong of Pittsburgh gave a first estimate of registration in that city of 67,075.

Mayor Burns of Troy, N. Y., reported a registration of 7,339, of which 2,875 claimed exemption.

In some places registration is being continued. Among these was Illinois, where the compilation of the returns was being made slowly and hindered by storms.

Reports Little Trouble

Telegraphic reports to the department of justice from widely separated sections of the country continue to show general absence of trouble over the registration and a thorough response to the conscription law.

Kansas City, Mo., reported that the registration had exceeded the estimates. The state and in the city alone 30,000 had registered, an excess of 50 per cent over the estimated number.

The first official report of an arrest for failure to register received at the department of justice came from Deadwood, S. D., where Anton Maleta, a Slavonian, was placed in jail for non-compliance with the law.

Iowa state officials predict a total enrollment in Iowa approximating at least the government's estimate of 212,000, or nearly 24,000 in excess of the state census department's estimate.

Attorney General Gregory issued this statement:

"Reports received at the department of justice relative to registration indicate a ready and general response on the part of the young men of the country to the demands of the conscription act."

"So far only three arrests have been reported to the department, and none of these grew out of a serious situation. No resistance to registration has come to my attention."

Baltimore, Md., June 7.—Unofficial estimates of the registration in Maryland place the total at approximately 112,000, of which 57,000 were enrolled in Baltimore. Registration continued here of men who claimed inability to register.

Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., June 7.—Minnesota's registration is likely to fall 10,000 below government estimates, according to Adjutant General Wood. He said that his own official estimate of 240,000 would be nearer the mark than the war department's figures of approximately 250,000.

Duluth registered 9,880 men, according to complete returns given out by this statement.

CURIOUS CONDENSATIONS

Packing apples attractively helps to sell them for more money.

A drug said to be potent in bringing immunity from mosquito bites is oil of cedar.

More copper was produced in the United States last year than in any prior year in the country's history.

The French are great bread eaters, their consumption in normal times being estimated at 580 pounds annually per capita.

A presidential decree of March 12, 1917, creates an experiment station of agriculture and forestry with a garden of acclimatization, in Venezuela.

It will be located on lands near the city of Caracas and is intended to serve as a model for other such stations to be established in other parts of the republic.

ARMORY MEASURE VETOED BY PHILIPP

GOV. SAYS BILL WOULD PLACE
UNNECESSARY BURDEN
ON TAXPAYERS.

BUILDING CAN BE DELAYED

Executive Declares Expenditures of $52,000 Annually Should Be Delayed Until After War to Meet Present Calls.

Madison—Gov. Philipp has sent a message to the senate, vetoing the bill, appropriating $52,000 annually for the construction of armories for the Wisconsin National Guard. The reasons of the governor for vetoing the bill were that the measure would add to the burden of the taxpayers a sum for military purposes not absolutely necessary at this time when he will be called upon to contribute for war purposes to the limit of his ability to pay, that it would take money from the field of active production where they are sorely needed at the present time, and that it would cause the state to purchase materials for the construction of buildings at a time when the cost thereof is far above normal prices. The senate postponed action on the veto. It is not believed that the bill will be passed over the governor's veto.

TEACHERS' MINIMUM PAY $45

Governor Signs Bill Naming Lowest Salary Under Appropriation of State School Fund.

Madison—The legislature has made possible many school teachers of the state receiving an increase in salary during the coming year. The legislature has passed and the governor has just signed the bill fixing the minimum salary of teachers at $45 a month.

The first minimum salary law was enacted in Wisconsin in 1913 fixing the salary of teachers at not less than $40 a month. School men claim that the minimum salary law has brought better teachers into the profession.

In order to enforce the provision for this minimum salary the law as just signed by the governor provides that "no appropriation of school funds shall be made to any city, village or town" unless the common school shall have been taught by a qualified teacher paid a salary of not less than $45 a month.

Gov. Philipp has also signed the Everett bill providing for a co-ordination of state work and of departmental co-operation. The law provides that the departments shall exchange information, and may jointly employ or make assignments of employees as the best interests of the public service require.

WANT STATE SUPERVISION

Many Cities of Wisconsin Petition Legislature Favoring Rail Commission Power.

Madison—Upwards of a dozen cities of the state have petitioned the legislature in favor of the Wilcox bill, giving the state railroad commission power to order extension of street railway lines, when the commission is satisfied that the best interests of the community will be promoted by extension. The senate has passed the bill, but the Wilcox bill on this subject. A similar bill, authored by Assemblyman D. S. Burnett of Marathon county, passed in the assembly, but was not concurred in by the senate some time ago, before the facts regarding the introduction of the bill were known.

The commission has the power to order the extension of water and gas mains, but the power to order the extension of street car lines has never been conferred on the commission. Senator Wilcox says there is much need for legislation of this character in many of the cities of Wisconsin. The cities of Madison and Wausau have shown great interest in the measure, and should the bill pass applications for extensions of the lines in these cities will probably be made.

City May Over-subscribe.

Big Bond Subscription.

872 TO GRADUATE FROM "U"

President Van Hise to Award Diplomas to Seniors on June 20.
Many to Be Absent.

Madison—On June 20 President Charles R. Van Hise will present 872 diplomas to seniors at the commencement exercises of the University of Wisconsin. The feature of this year's commencement will be the great number of seniors who will be graduated in absentia. It is estimated that 300 seniors will have to be mailed to over 300 men graduates. Over this number have already left for some sort of war service, more than 200 being at Fort Sheridan. President Van Hise is negotiating with the committee at the university to see if it will be possible to get the seniors who are in training there to come back for graduation. It is quite doubtful, however, if the men will be given a leave, and in that case their diplomas will be sent to them at the camp.

The commencement exercises will begin with the baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Hugh Clark of the Union Theological seminary on Sunday, June 17. Monday will be class reunion day, when all classes represented at the commencement, including the alumni, will be present. There will be a large number of meetings, picnics and exercises. Tuesday will be alumni day, with a parade through the streets of Madison, a banquet and the annual alumni ball. The commencement exercises will take place on Wednesday.

CATTLE TEST IS PLANNED

Measure Provides for An Annual Fund of $18,000 for Tuberculosis
Survey of the State.

Madison—Wisconsin will make an effort to eradicate bovine tuberculosis, if the bill which has been presented in the assembly is enacted into law. The bill has passed the assembly and is now in the senate. It provides for the annual appropriation of $18,000 for two years to make a survey of the state and to provide for testing cattle by urus. This is a new policy. The plan for a clean-up of bovine tuberculosis in Wisconsin is backed by Agricultural Commissioner C. P. Norford. It was at his request that the plan of attempting to eradicate the disease by urus was suggested. It is believed that the plan is the best one, and under its it is hoped by the department to discover ways of controlling the disease.

Authority to Establish Grades
for Roads in the State.

Madison—The senate, under suspension of the rules, has passed the Reinholdt bill, giving the Wisconsin railroad commission authority to establish grades for railroads to be built in the state, and to establish grades for approaches and bridges across such tracks. The purpose of the bill, Senator Reinholdt said, was to have grades for railroads to be built in the future established so that as a city developed, it would not be necessary to separate the grades, as is the case with the city of Milwaukee and other cities in the state, and establish grades for approaches and bridges across such tracks. He said that the bill would be of special benefit to the west and southwest parts of the city of Milwaukee, where new roads were to be built soon, and new grades for present tracks were to be established.

MANY AGENTS NAMED

ABOUT ONE-HALF OF STATE HAS LABOR REPRESENTATIVES.

Are Working Hard to Solve Problems of Raising Crops to Aid in the Present War.

Madison—About one-half of the counties of Wisconsin have chosen labor agents and organized bureaus which are hard at work to solve the local problems of raising crops to aid in the war. Those shown as completely organized have selected local agents to make radio contacts. Some of the northern counties with but one or two radio centers, are being helped by the agricultural representatives.

The completely organized counties are: Burnett, Columbia, Dodge, Douglas, Eau Claire, Forest, La Crosse, Langlade, Lincoln, Marathon, Monroe, Polk, Price, Shawano, Taylor, Vilas, Winnebago and Wood. The counties partly organized are: Dane, Dunn, Fond du Lac, Grant, Green, Jefferson, Kenosha, Marinette, Milwaukee, Rusk, Vilas, Washington, Waushara and Waubesa. Besides the twenty-four county agricultural agents, twenty-eight emergency food agents have been placed in counties. Only nineteen counties are unprovided with a special leader in agriculture. The college of agriculture has dismissed practically all the junior and senior classes, thereby releasing members of the faculty and others for food service.

They want to go to war; they want to be among the fighting men of the Stars and Stripes on the firing line in France, and if Adj. Gen. Orlando Holway will accept them, they will raise a company of Indians for the Wisconsin National Guard.

Assemblyman John C. Chapple, Ashland, called on Gen. Holway and told him that the Chippewas Indians at the Ojibwa reservation are willing to serve in the world war. The Indians will raise a company within twenty-four hours, he said. They are especially anxious to enlist as one unit and not be scattered throughout the guard. Mr. Chapple explained, Gen. Holway took the matter under advisement.

Wells Lumber company of Marinette has posted notice of a raise of fifteen cents a day beginning June 1. This affects about 400 men. The Sawyer-Goodman Lumber company, the largest on the Menominee river, and the Marinette and Menominee Box company made similar announcements. The former has 700 men in its employ and the latter has over 400. Other companies will follow, it is said. This advance is in addition to an increase granted in April, making a total raise for the season of 40 cents a day.

School Teachers Ask Bonus.

They presented a united petition to the board of education asking that they be granted a bonus for work done this year amounting to one month's salary. The teachers declare that the account of increased living costs they are "strapped" and have nothing to provide for vacations or summer school work.

NATION ENROLLS OVER 10,000,000 FOR ARMY DRAFT

Young Men of Country Swamp Polls to Register.

NEW CHANCE TO REGISTER

5,000,000 Are Listed Who Will Probably Not Be Liable to Draft—Time
Extended to Complete Roll
Before Selection Begins.

Washington, June 7.—One-half of the men registering for service under the draft act are claiming exemption from service. It was learned at the office of the Provost Marshal General Crowder on Wednesday. As only a small percentage of the claims will be allowed, it is believed the number of men available will not be materially reduced.

Two States Exceed Estimates.

In two states the actual registration exceeded the census estimates by large figures. In Pennsylvania the response was particularly heavy and caused great gratification at the war department. The census estimate for the Keystone state was given as $70,478 and the actual registration figures were 950,303. Vermont, too, exceeded the census estimate by more than 1,000. The other states heard from dropped behind the estimated returns but only by small margins in most cases except Rhode Island.

With the total registration in excess of 10,000,000, the "probable exemptions" are about 5,000,000. Full official returns from Delaware showed a registration of 21,364, of which 11,031 either claimed exemption or were classed as "probable exemptions." Under the census estimates Delaware should have registered 20,825. Only 52 alien enemies registered in Delaware.

Extend Time to Register.

So heavy was the registration that in many places it could not be completed Tuesday night. Provost Marshal General Crowder announced that the government would adopt a liberal policy "for the next few days" and that all who had failed to register on Tuesday, but could show good faith, should have another opportunity to place their names on the roll of honor. This stand was taken also so that the registration could be made complete before the selection for service begins. All who failed to register Tuesday, but who allow themselves the opportunity to pass by will be dealt with vigorously.

Complete returns from New Jersey.

The first to come in, show registration of 302,363. The estimates by the census bureau was 300,563. Governors of Missouri and Ohio stated that their reports would be delayed because of storms.

Mayor Armstrong of Pittsburgh gave a first estimate of registration in that city of 97,678. Mayor Burns of Troy, N. Y., reported registration of 7,330, of which 2,375 claimed exemption.

In some places registration is being continued. Among those was Illinois, where the completion of the returns was being made slowly and hindered by storms.

Reports Little Trouble.

Telegraphic reports to the department of justice from widely separated sections of the country continue to show general absence of trouble over the registration and a thorough response to the conscription law.

Kenosha, Wis., reported that the registration had exceeded the estimates generally through the state and in the city alone 30,000 had registered, an excess of 50 per cent over the estimated number.

The first official report of an arrest for failure to register received at the department of justice came from De Witt, S. D., where Anton Maleta, a Slavonian, was placed in jail for non-compliance with the law.

Iowa state officials predict a total

enrollment in Iowa approximately at least the government's estimate of 212,000, or nearly 24,000 in excess of the state census department's estimate.

Attorney General Gregory issued this statement: "The registration of 'justice' relative to registration indicate a ready and general response on the part of the young men of the country to the demands of the conscription act."

Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., June 7.—Unofficial estimates of the registration in Maryland place the total at approximately 112,000, of which 57,000 were enrolled in Baltimore. Registrations continued here of men who claimed inability to register.

Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., June 7.—Minnesota's registration is likely to fall 10,000 below government estimates, according to Adjutant General Wood. He said that his own original estimate of 240,000 was where Anton Maleta, a Slavonian, was placed in jail for non-compliance with the law.

Duluth registered 9,880 men, according to complete returns given out by the city.

Under a new law recently passed and now in force every contract to pay a commission to a real estate agent or broker, or any other person for selling or buying land, is void unless it is in writing, properly signed, expressing the price of sale or purchase, commission to be paid, period of time such agent is to have to procure a buyer or seller, and describing the land.

If county boards shall desire, they may extend the term of supervisors. The new law provides that by adoption of a resolution, the boards may extend the terms to three years. By the same resolution the county boards may extend the terms of the other members of town boards to three years, so that only one supervisor may be elected each year. This will be rather a radical departure, but it is optional with county boards whether or not they shall adopt it.

The Wisconsin river has been unusually high during the past week, the rains of last week having caused it to raise sufficiently so that most of the low bottom lands are flooded. High water at this time of the year is rather unusual and would indicate that a large amount of water has fallen in the northern part of the state.

Stevens Point Elks have given up the idea of erecting a club house this year, and have moved back into their old quarters. Thos. Jacobson, one of the pioneer farmers of the town of Carson, was a pleasant caller at this office on Tuesday, coming in to advance his subscription to the Tribune for another year. Mr. Jacobson and family returned Monday from Alabama, where they had spent the past winter with their son-in-law John Hassel, who has been living there for several years. Mr. Jacobson says they enjoyed the winter there very much, but that he would not like to live there all the time, as it was getting very hot when they left. He also reported that on registration day there were over 10,000 blacks registered in Alabama over 5,000 whites, and that at one time German agents were busy there trying to get the blacks to start trouble in Mexico, but that the government soon put a stop to it.

Cliff Bluet is acting as extra patrolman on the west side.

During the Civil War the price of pork on foot reached about $12 per 100 pounds. Recently the price has been about $16.40. During the war a dollar in gold was worth $2.84 in paper money, and now a dollar in paper is worth just as much as a dollar in gold. Basing the price of pork at the present time on these figures it is bringing $47 a hundred providing paper had depreciated now as much as it did in the sixties.

Geo. Horn, the Vesper hardware merchant was in the city Tuesday looking after some business matters. Mr. Horn has recently left the hospital at Marshfield where he had been a patient since last fall, during which time he went through several operations and an attack of typhoid fever, and only his strong constitution pulled him thru, as the attending physicians had given him up several times. Mr. Horn says he owes his life to the faithful nursing of a trained nurse from Baltimore who had charge of his case until he left the hospital. Mr. Horn lost over 100 pounds during his illness, but is slowly regaining his former strength and weight.

Marshfield Herald: Herbert, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Trossen, was drowned Thursday afternoon at 5:20 in the artificial lake at the water works station.

In company with Orrin Graham and Winton Bille, boys of his own age, the three, with a miniature boat they had constructed in the Graham barn, all on the quiet, went to the lake to test their water craft. Herbert was the first to try and getting in pushed the frail boat from shore. Not more than twenty feet out where the water was about five feet deep the boat filled and sank and with it the unfortunate boy. Three times he was seen to come to the surface but before assistance reached him he drowned. His companions, too badly frightened to be of much help, tried to reach him with a fish pole but failing in this gave the alarm at the power house. Engineer Otto Meyer hastened to the scene but his summons had come too late. Perhaps 15 minutes elapsed from the time the accident took place and the body was recovered by Mr. Meyer who worked over the prostrate form until the arrival of Dr. Potter, but all to no avail.

HOSPITAL UNITS ARE ADVANCE GUARD OF EXPEDITIONARY FORCE TO FRANCE

Two Have Already Gone to Europe and More Are to Follow—For Two Years Preparations Have Been Going Forward in Hospitals All Over the Country Under the Direction of the Red Cross.

By MARY DEWHURST.
(In the New York Tribune.)

New York.—Long before the fighting men of the United States reach the battlefields of Europe, the letters of U. S. M. R. C. will be known to wounded soldiers in many a little town in France. In base hospitals, close behind the armies, will be found doctors, nurses and orderlies of the first American, advance guard of the first expeditionary force which this country ever sent abroad.

Already two base hospital units are on the other side, five others are to follow within a few weeks, and all through the summer, along with munitions and food, ships from America will carry men and women of the United States Medical Reserve Corps.

Twenty-Six Units Organized.

During the last two years the army has foreseen the present emergency and prepared for it. Under the direction of Col. Jefferson R. Keen, medical director of the American Red Cross, 26 base hospital units have been organized in connection with medical centers all over the country. Beginning with the Massachusetts General hospital on the Eastern seaboard, and extending to San Francisco on the West coast, different hospitals have volunteered staff and equipment for war service. Colonel Keen co-ordinated each hospital's doctors, nurses, instruments and physical properties into units, registered them under the Red Cross and arranged for their immediate transfer into the Medical Reserve Corps at the outbreak of war.

Each unit has been placed, and each unit has been notified to replace itself in readiness for foreign duty. The British organizations in France, which will move on to other positions, they are American's response to the situation created by the torpedoing of hospital ships. Henceforth hospitals must be self-sufficient, since sick and helpless men are no longer exempt from the rigors of war.

Rosides 70 nurses and 25 doctors, each unit includes an administrative personnel of about 150 civilians. A base hospital's equipment provides for 500 beds, which allows about 20 nurses and a doctor to attend 20 wounded. These physicians and nurses are only the first-aid givers, the experts, who, with their patients, must be fed, housed, transported, indexed and amused, and it takes all of the 150 willing workers to see to it.

First to Mobilize.

With every unit goes a quartermaster from the regular army. In command of the administrative forces. All civilians are enlisted under him as privates, at $15 a month, and later appointed to special duties according to whether they are cooks or laboratory experts. At the outset the college man with a string of letters after his name goes in on a par with the husky Irishman who can drive a mule, and of the two the Irishman gets the warmer welcome.

The first unit from New York to get its mobilization orders was the one organized by the Presbyterian hospital. It has been in existence over a year and prides itself on its equipment, bought and stowed away against just such a call. Last year orders came for a practice mobilization in Philadelphia, but the hospital trustees demurred at giving its doctors and nurses leave of absence, so the equipment was sent without them. It took 18 freight cars to carry it. Out in Cleveland directors

AIDS IN RECRUITING

The most profitable recruit to enlist in the First Reserve Engineer Regiment is Private Thomas J. Whalen of Hoboken. He enlisted last Wednesday, and repeated the performance on Friday and Saturday. On Tuesday his wife and seven-year-old daughter came over, the little girl clad in khaki with a red, white and blue ribbon tied around her hair, marched up and down in front of the recruiting office carrying a standard on which was painted "Don't Be a Slacker. See What My Daddy Is Doing for His Country. Join the Engineers."

SPRING IS LIKE A GEYSER

District Forester Makes Discovery While on Inspection Trip in Wyoming.

Laramie, Wyo.—Upon his return from an inspection trip in Wyoming, A. C. McCull, assistant district forester, reported that he had discovered a strange geyserlike spring of clear and cold water about seven miles from Afton.

WOMEN GET MEN'S PLACES

Shortage of Labor Is Becoming Serious Problem in the Pacific Northwest.

Portland, Ore.—Women conductors soon may be collecting fares and helping mothers with babies board the street cars of this city. The local traction company is gathering data regarding the women who are serving as railway employees in England and France. The growing shortage of labor in the of the Lakeside hospital unit, of which Dr. George W. Crile is chief, jumped at the chance to train its staff in practice work and two nights under canvas to spend the Presbyterian equipment. The personnel and the physical properties were detailed in a manner eminently satisfactory to the army officers in charge; this in spite of minor changes in specifications forced by such awkward factors as the pole in the center of the garage tent, which made it impracticable for ambulances, or the necessity of building a hut for the sterilizing plant to protect it from drafts.

When the Presbyterian unit crosses its war orders last month it crosses objections no longer counts. The doctors were all officers in the United States Medical Reserve Corps and subject to duty. The nurses were registered with the Red Cross, to be called to recruit to full strength, a matter of some detail, since its civilian requirements are varied.

Signs for Third Time.

"You've everything here but a band," said one applicant, looking over the list of things open to him. "Well, I'd like to see you sign up for the first three days. I've been with the sawbones in the Philippines and again on the Mexican border; here are my papers to prove it. I might as well go with 'em once more. It's fine for the health, boys; better come in," he called to some students who seemed to hesitate about enlisting.

Barring accidents, men who enlist with a unit will never know the fore-front of battle. Base hospitals are planted miles behind the armies, generally in some deserted hotel or empty rooming house.

"We've had everything here from picture hangers to plumbers," said Dr. Sydney Burnap, who enrolled the force. "We needed mechanics, pharmacists, electricians, carpenters and cooks, and we got them all."

When the hospital units were planned two years ago provision was made for 50 volunteer nurses' aids, to serve without pay, but with subsistence and transportation furnished by the government.

Doctors' Wives Go.

All over the country women qualified for this duty by taking Red Cross training in "Home Care of the Sick." In the Presbyterian unit some of the doctors' wives planned to accompany their husbands as nurses' aids. Mrs. George E. Brower, wife of the unit's director, was one who had worked hardest to fit herself to go along. Recorders, indexers, stenographers and typists nearly mobbed the unit's offices after the mobilization orders appeared, seeking a chance to serve in the first force to go to France.

With all of these it was another case of Mr. Britling looking for war work and looking in vain. Orders had come from Washington that no nurses' aids were to be taken. If necessary, their aid was to be used for clerical places. Instead of being mobilized, the workers, as originally planned, the number was cut to four, who must be women, with training in medical noncombative.

These women clerical workers are an anomaly unclassified in army regulations. They are a branch of service sure to develop with the need, and those who go over now are pioneers in much the same way as were the women Clara Barton organized into Red Cross nurses in the days of the Civil War. Keeping the records of 500 patients is a job in itself. When the 500 change every few weeks the job grows with the card indexes, to say nothing of their diagnoses and histories. There are requisitions to be made out, letters to be answered and anxious relatives to be communicated with. As the units follow each other throughout the year, more women will probably be taken to release the doctors from routine clerical work, just as women will finally go as nurses' aids in order to release men for the front.

Would Scrub Floors.

But with the first installations the war office is "from Missouri," and must be shown. So that at the Presbyterian unit's enrollment officers either accepted or pointed spread among the recruits. No one knew what Mrs. Brower said, but she found that even the doctor could not secure an exception in her favor, but some of the others were outspoken.

"Why did you want to go?" one little typist was asked, as she turned de-jectedly away after being told she had no chance.

"Because I want to do something quick for my country," she answered. "I'd have gone to scrub floors. Do you know if they pay a stenographer anything? Yes, well, I'd have gone for nothing."

The nurses feel the same way about it. There's heart-burning and disappointment among those left behind in the hospitals of the city. One nurse, a Canadian, registered as a French army nurse as well as with the American Red Cross, since she had served a year in the summer camps, and knew a game.

"I know just why you must stay here," answered the head nurse to whom she applied. "You have had your chance and now you'll have to let someone else have a try at it. It wouldn't be fair to give it twice to you."

The Canadian gave up with a bad grace, but finally consoled herself with the thought that these early units would soon be followed by others, and that if the war lasts as long as now seems probable those who went late would be less near the breaking point when peace comes.

When mobilization orders went out of Washington last month for seven hospital units to proceed as soon as possible to France, the first to get away was the one from Cleveland.

"That's because we did that mobilization stunt in Philadelphia last year," said one of the young khaki-clad doctors before he sailed. "We thought at the time the practice idea was all fad, but we're tickled to death. We were told that if we could mobilize in ten days we could get the first ship. We did it in seven."

Some of Cleveland's most eminent doctors threw up practices worth scores of thousands to go with their unit on a major's pay of three thousand a year. Dr. George W. Crile, its director, will follow later, but his partner, Doctor Lower, went along, as well as Doctor Hoover, head of the medical staff of Lakeside hospital. Out of the unit's hundred and fifty civilians, 70 are college boys, some of them within a month of their diplomas. Just before the ship sailed news came that the organization was to be received with celebrations on the other side.

"We can't march without music," said the director, and the civilian force was hastily canvassed for musical talent. Ten minutes before the gang-plank was raised three snare drums and a bundle of fives were hurried aboard, and the first division of the American army in Europe expects to parade to the tune of "Yankee Doodle" past Buckingham palace or down the Champs Elysees or wherever a grateful populace turns out to cheer them as a far-flung promise of troops to come.

SUITS "TURNED" IN HUNGARY

Tailor's Trick Now Saves the Labor and Expense of a New Garment.

Budapest, Hungary.—It is a badge of patriotism in Hungary nowadays to wear a coat with the side pocket on the right-hand side, revealing that the garment has been turned so as to make it presentable, thus saving the labor and expense of a new suit. In fashionable restaurants and hotels one sees many prominent people thus attired.

Nobody, not even a war millionaire, can afford many new suits nowadays, and the tailors are reluctant to make clothes even at their own price, which is now about $50, cash in advance, for a suit which would cost about $20 in peace time. The tailor generally tries to dissuade a would-be customer from ordering a new suit, at the same time offering to turn his old suit and make it look like new for $10 or $15.

RIVER NAVIGATION TO BOOM

Memphis, Tenn.—One company is being organized with a capital stock of $2,500,000 for the purpose of developing navigation on the Mississippi river, and there are indications that other corporations within the next few months. River men believe that because of the congested condition of railroads river navigation will come into its own. There is immense tonnage that might be moved by water all the way from New Orleans to St. Paul and along the tributaries of the Mississippi, including the Ohio river and the Missouri river.

RETURNING DESERTERS—LENIENTLY TREATED

Boston, Mass.—Soldiers who deserted prior to the declaration of war have surrendered in large numbers to the military authorities. It was said at the headquarters of the department of the Northwest, Maj. Gen. Clarence B. Edwards announced, that in such cases men would be shown every leniency, and if no civil crime was involved in the desertion, they would be tried by a court without power to adjudge dishonorable discharge.

"The local commanders who convene such courts will be advised to extend leniency in every case where the soldier has shown by his conduct a sincere desire to make amends for the past," he said.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—Government officials have been looking for a slogan to rouse interest in the buying of Liberty bonds and also to impress on Americans that they should do whatever they can to help their country.

"Do your bit" is an English expression, but it has been used in this country. H. P. Stevenson of River Forest, Ill., has suggested "Hold up your end" as a good American expression and one with a sufficient amount of pepper in it.

By whatever slogan or by whatever other means the government directs attention to the Liberty loan, it may be said that the campaign in behalf of this bond issue of the country is one of the most strenuous ever engaged in by the official representatives of the people.

Washington holds that it is the patriotic duty of every man who is able to do so to buy a Liberty bond. They are issued in various denominations, beginning with $5 and as low as $50, and the means of their purchase is made easy. The government hopes that this bond issue will be oversubscribed.

Funds Should Come From All.

The government holds that the funds to prosecute the war should come from men and women of the nation at large and not from certain classes. The officials ask that all the newspapers of the country from the smallest to the greatest shall work together in a campaign giving the common cause "the impetus and force of a nation-wide concerted action and correlated effort."

Robert W. Woolley, at one time director of the mint and a newspaper man of years' standing, is the director of the publicity bureau of the Liberty loan of 1917.

"That's because we did that mobilization stunt in Philadelphia last year," said one of the young khaki-clad doctors before he sailed. "We thought at the time the practice idea was all fad, but we're tickled to death. We were told that if we could mobilize in ten days we could get the first ship. We did it in seven."

PLAIN DOLLARS AND CENTS

By Emil Feland (Herald)

Respectively of plain duty—that is, of obvious patriotism—the Liberty Bond is appealing. It appeals as an exceptionally good business proposition.

Put simply, the safest, the most desirable security is that issued by a strong and prosperous nation. The

strongest and most prosperous nation
in the world is the United States.

Its strength and prosperity, present and prospective, are beyond comparison.

This unprecedentedly provident country is offering a 3 1/2 per cent bond.

Financial records prove that
the offer is a bargain in every respect.

Prior to the present war, the 3 per cent
bonds issued during the war with

Spain were quoted up to 110 and the old 4 per cent bonds up to 125.

After this war, the chances are many that the 3 1/2, which may be had at par, will command a stiff premium;

not less than 15 cents, perhaps 20.

Should the war be prolonged beyond present expectations, Mr. Mc-

Adoo may put out bonds at 4 1/2. In that event, the 3 1/2 per cents carry
the privilege of being converted into

4 1/2 per cents, which would mean an eventual premium of from 25 to 30 cents.

The bond will have a broad and easy market. It can be turned into cash instantly anywhere. It will be star (A.A.I.) collateral. Banks will always be eager to lend on it at

within a fraction of the current

market price.

Briefly, it is not only the best—
the safest—investment imaginable, but considering its safety and desirability, it yields the highest interest and is sure to enhance in value with succeeding years. All this from the purely investment, the business, viewpoint.

In buying a bond you enable your country and her allies to create and
to buy things with which to defeat
the enemy. Every dollar so invested
is an earnest of your citizenship,
your love of country; an active patriotism far superior to the flag-

waving kind.

It would infinitely more desirable
to have millions of men and women
each buy a few bonds than to have a few multi-millionaires buy millions
of the bonds.

TO THE FRIENDS OF THE MILWAUKEE NORMAL THROUGH THE STATE

Greetings:

Owing to the action of the state legislature in cutting down the information for the summer term in the normal schools, it has become

necessary to shorten the summer
term in all Wisconsin normal schools
for the present summer to six weeks.

For this reason and in order that
the greatest possible advantage may be taken of every moment of the summer term, it has seemed wise to defer the opening at Milwaukee from June 11 to June 25.

The Milwaukee State Normal School summer term will therefore begin on Monday, June 25, and unless something untoward occurs will continue for six weeks only.

It is expected that all of the courses
which were announced to be given in the summer term, as per the regular bulletin heretofore sent out, will be given during the term of six weeks
beginning as above. A supplementary bulletin and announcement will
be sent out in a few days giving
further details.

County superintendents are requested to see that this notice of the date of opening reaches all teachers

in their counties.

The City superintendents also are requested to see that all of the teachers
under their charge are notified.

All others to whom the information comes are requested to give it
as wide publicity as possible, in the interest and for the convenience of those who are planning to attend the summer term as students. It is hoped that the notice will be so generally circulated that no one will through failure to receive notice of the deferred date of opening, come to the school to enroll on Monday the 11th, or between that time and the date announced for the opening of the

work as above.

Very truly yours,
CARROLL C. PEARSE,
President.

PLAIN DOLLARS AND CENTS

By Emil Feland (Bourne) Irrespective of plain duty—that is, of patriotic patriotism—the Liberty Bond is appealing. It appeals as an exceptionally good business proposition.

Financially, the safest, the most desirable security is that issued by a strong and prosperous nation. The
strongest and most prosperous nation is, and has been for years, the United States. Its strength and prosperity, present and prospective, are beyond comparison.

This unprecedentedly good government country is offering 3 1/2% bond at par. Financial records prove that the offer is a bargain in every respect.
Prior to the present war, the 3 1/2%
bonds issued during the war with cents quoted up to 110 and the old 4 per cent bonds as high as 125.

After this war, the chances are
many that the 3 1/2%, which may be had at par, will yield a still premium, not less than 15 points, perhaps 20 points.

Should the war be prolonged beyond present expectations, Mr. Mc-Adoo may put out bonds at 4%. In
that event, the 3 1/2% per cents carry
the privilege of being converted into the 4 per cents, which would mean an eventual premium of from 25 to 30 points.

The bond will have a broad and easy market. It can be turned into cash instantly anywhere. It will be star (A.A.1.) collateral. Banks will always be eager to lend on it at
within a fraction, of the current
market price.

Briefly, it is not only the best—
to buy things with which to defeat
the enemy. Every dollar so invested
is an earnest of your citizenship;
your love of country; an active patriotism far superior to the flag-
waving kind.

It was infinitely more desirable
to have millions of men and women
each buy a few bonds than to have a few millionaires buy millions
of the bonds.

TO THE FRIENDS OF THE MIL- WAUKEE NORMAL THROUGHT

Greetings:
Owing to the action of the state legislature in cutting down the appropriation for the summer term in
the normal schools, it has become
necessary to shorten the summer
term in all Wisconsin normal schools
for the present summer to six weeks.

For this reason and in order that
the greatest possible advantage may
be taken of every moment of the summer term, it has been wisely determined to open at Milwaukee from June 11 to June 26.

The Milwaukee State Normal
School summer term will, therefore,
begin on Monday, June 25, and unless something unforeseen occurs will continue for six weeks only.

It is expected that all of the courses
which were announced to be given in
the summer term, as per the regular
bulletin heretofore sent out, will be
given during the term of six weeks
beginning as above. A supplementary bulletin and announcement will
be sent out in a few days giving
further details.

County superintendents are requested to see that this notice of the
date of opening reaches all teachers
in their charge are notified.

All others to whom the information comes are requested to give it
as wide publicity as possible, in the
interest and for the convenience of
those who are planning to attend the summer term as students. It is hoped this notice will be so generally circulated that no one will, through failure to receive notice of the deferred date of opening, come to the school on Monday the 11th day of June or between that time and the date announced for the opening of the
work as above.

Very truly yours,
CARROLL G. PEARSE,
President.

HORSE FAMINE IS NEAR

Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Percheron Society of America says that only 16% of the farmers are breeding to replace stock sold.

It takes five years he says, to grow horses. It takes time to make much headway in the horse business. Five years are needed to grow a horse.
At best one should not expect more than two colts from three mares as an average per year. Moreover, not more than 16% of our farmers are raising colts.

Not long hence the American farmer will wake up only to learn that a great opportunity has passed. There is no time to ponder to see the greatest demand for horseflesh the world has ever known. It can't be met on short notice. The man who sells there is no chance of getting to the best stallion available and is taking proper care of the offspring is the man who is sure to be rewarded.

There are plenty of men who have bought and sold for farms within the past ten years by their pure-bred draft mares.

War Takes Millions
A careful consideration of the situation cannot fail to convince the farmer that there is no chance of an over-production of heavy draft horses for our farms and city uses. Almost 1,000,000 horses and mules have been exported from this country in the last 27 months for use in war.
These figures show almost one horse or mule taken for every 25 left.

As surely as this war continues another year, the demand for horses will be at a premium; and even after the war is over, exports will not cease, for thousands of horses will be needed to start European agriculture anew.

Demand Continues
It follows as a necessary consequence, that the demand for purebred draft horses for breeding purposes will continue to be good. Instead of having been, to all practical purposes, cut off.

We are producing only 12,000 or 13,000 pure-bred draft horses el-ligible to registry. This means in fact that we are producing only 5,000 or 6,000 stallions fit for service per year, when we need at least 7,000 or 8,000. An excess of demand over supply always makes good prices, and the present is no exception.

SOY BEANS FOR SEED NORTH OF THE POTOMAC AND OHIO RIVERS

Washington, D. C. June 12.—Northern farmers may well plant a much larger acreage to soy beans for seed, according to the United States department of agriculture. In view of the present and prospective high prices of soy beans for food and manufacturing purposes, there is no likelihood of over-production this year.
The soy bean also is a soil improver,
and the straw is valuable for feeding purposes.

As a seed crop the soy bean should be planted about June first in the north. However, in the southern part of the central states planting may be made as late as June 15. Where clover or grass has winter-killed, the soy bean may be planted to good advantage.

Varieties with yellow seeds are preferred by food manufacturers.
The Ito San is the earliest maturing yellow variety available and yields well in Wisconsin, Indiana and Connecticut. In the central and southern parts of the northern states

Under a new law recently passed and now in force every contract to pay a commission to a real estate agent or broker, or any other person, for selling or buying land, is void unless it is in writing, properly signed, expressing the price of sale or purchase, commission to be paid, period of time such agent is to have to procure a buyer or seller, and describing the land.

If county boards shall desire, they may extend the law to supervisors. The new law provides that the adoption of a resolution, the boards may extend the terms to three years. By the same resolution the county boards may extend the terms of the other members of town boards to three years, so that only one supervisor may be elected each year. This will be rather a radical departure, but it is optional with county boards whether or not they shall adopt it.

The Wisconsin river has been unusually high during the past week, the rains of last week having caused water to raise sufficiently so that most of the low bottom lands are flooded. Mr. Horn lost over 100 pounds during his illness, but is slowly regaining his former strength and weight.

DROWNED AT MARSHFIELD

Marshfield Herald: Herbert, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Frossen, was drowned Thursday afternoon at 5:20 in the artificial lake at the water works station.

In company with Orrin Graham and Winton Bille, boys of his own age, the three, with a miniature boat they had constructed in the Graham barn, all on the quiet, went to the lake to test their water craft. Herbert was the first to try and getting in pushed the frail boat from shore. Not more than twenty feet out where the water was about five feet deep the boat tilted and sank and with it the unfortunate boy. Three times he was taken to the surface but before assistance reached him he was drowned. His companions, too badly frightened to be of much help, tried to reach him with a fish pole but failing in this gave the alarm at the power house. Engineer Otto Meyer hastened to the scene but his summons had come too late. Perhaps 15 minutes elapsed from the time the accident took place and the body was recovered by Mr. Meyer who worked over the prostrate form until the arrival of Dr. Potter, but all to no avail.

Under a new law recently passed and now in force every contract to pay a commission to a real estate agent or broker, or any other person for selling or buying land, is void unless it is in writing, properly signed, expressing the price of sale or purchase, commission to be paid, period of time such agent is to have to procure buyer or seller, and describing the land.

If county boards shall desire, they may extend the term of supervisors. The new law provides that by adoption of a resolution, the boards may extend the terms to three years. By the same resolution the county boards may extend the terms of the other members of town boards to three years, so that only one supervisor may be elected each year. During the Civil War the price of pork on foot reached about $12 per 100 pounds. Recently the price has been about $16.40. During the war a dollar in gold was worth $2.84 in paper money, and now a dollar in paper is worth just as much as a dollar in gold. Basing the price of pork at the present time on these figures it is bringing $47 a hundred providing paper had depreciated now as much as it did in the sixties.

Mr. Horn lost over 100 pounds during his illness, but is slowly regaining his former strength and weight.

DROWNED AT MARSHFIELD

Marshfield Herald: Herbert, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Trossen, was drowned Thursday afternoon at 5:20 in the artificial lake at the water works station.

In company with Orrin Graham and Winton Bille, boys of his own age, the three, with a miniature boat they had constructed in the Graham barn, all on the quiet, went to the lake to test their water craft. Herbert was the first to try and getting in pushed the frail boat from shore. Not more than twenty feet out where the water was about five feet deep the boat filled and sunk and with it the unfortunate boy. Three times he was seen to come to the surface but before assistance reached him he drowned. His companions, too badly frightened to be of much help, tried to reach him with a fish pole but failing in this gave the alarm at the power house. Engineer Otto Meyer hastened to the scene but his summons had come too late. Perhaps 15 minutes elapsed from the time the accident took place and the body was recovered by Mr. Meyer who worked over the prostrate form until the arrival of Dr. Potter, but all to no avail.

FOUR WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

No Relief—Mrs. Brown Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"For years I suffered so sometimes it seemed as though I could not stand it any longer. It was all in my lower organs. It didn't do me any good. I was almost faint. One day I did faint and my husband was sent for and the doctor came. I was taken to the hospital and stayed four weeks but when I came home I would faint just the same and had the same pains."

A friend who is a nurse asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it that very day for I was suffering a great deal. It has already done me more good than the hospital. To anyone who is suffering as I was my advice is to stop in the first drug-store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before you go home."

Let folks step on your feet hereafter; wear shoes a size smaller if you like, for corns will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this Cincinnati authority.

It says that a few drops of a drug called freezeone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out.

This drug dries at once and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezeone cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

If your druggist hasn't stocked this new drug yet, tell him to get a small bottle of freezeone for you from his wholesale drug house—adv.

Bushrod was establishing a pigeon coop of his own, emulating his neighbor, Bill Hite. In arranging the financial promotion of this venture, he went to his mother.

"Mother," he said, "I want a dollar to buy a pigeon."

Mother thought a dollar a rather high price for a pigeon, with common birds averaging ten cents.

"But mother," Bushrod said, earnestly, "you don't understand. This is a pedigree pigeon. With its pedigree it's cheap at a dollar."

Bushrod finally wheedled his mother out of the dollar and left to buy his blooded bird. He returned with the pigeon and a scrap of crumpled paper in his pocket.

"Mother," he said, "this is the pedigree."

On the crumpled scrap of paper was written:

"Grandmother, unknown. Grandmother, unknown. Father, unknown. Mother, Bill Hite's pigeon."

MANY NEW COLORS FOR LATE SUMMER

Six Shades of Red to Lead, It Is Officially Announced.

SOMBER TONES MAY PREVAIL

Manufacturers Think War Will Cause American Women to Choose Dull Clothes Though They May Be Expensive.

New York.—The manufacturers are exhibiting their usual interest in the colors which may come into fashion next autumn.

To the women, this forebodingness seems to be vitally wasted, but the man behind the business knows that now is the appointed hour to look with sharpened eyes into the near future.

Merchandise is a stupendous bulk of material that quickly goes into profit or loss. It makes or ruins a merchant and affects thousands who owe to his cleverness their chance to live in comfort.

If he does not look ahead with an eye and mind trained to take into account every minor and major happening, and every shadow of coming events, he goes down into debt, and carries the thousands who exist, when those who are more interested than ever before in the production of woman's apparel because of the strain caused by the war and the feeling of false economy, say among themselves that this color and that fabric will have no chance for popularity next winter, then they decide a momentous issue.

They realize that the public must be lured to buy while the buyer is good; while it can make use of the pieces of merchandise which exist, and which may soon cease to be worth while.

The public, itself, wants to know the prospects for the success of every garment. If its service is to be of short duration, then wisdom dictates that it must be made to yield every ounce of service now.

Many of us would willingly buy a garment, or a piece of cloth, if we were reminded to buy it would not serve us long, but that it would last for another three months, giving that as the reason for its selection from the original price. But we feel cheated and humiliated when, after buying something that was supposedly rising up the hill of popularity, we find that it is quickly going down hill.

Weary Quickly of Clothes.
Most of us are gaily—let us call it so—of wearing of what we possess in the way of clothes before they have given us value for money expended, and we willingly give them up under the pressure of an excess that will satisfy our conscience. If we buy often and without undue expense, we right happily fling away the purchase when its time comes to go.

It is this psychological truth that lies deep in the spirits of the majority, that makes it so easy for the department stores to reap a snug fortune each season out of the modishness and cheaply priced garments.

There is every reason to suppose that when the first excitement of war is over our women will go on buying the kind of clothes they prefer, but the manufacturers have decided that it is best to look forward to somber colors than we have worn.

Will Silks Grow in Strength?
Another question important to the people who sell apparel has to do with silk. We have been wearing it recklessly, and without regard to the fact that we could have cotton. All classes have indulged in silk weaves for every kind of garment, and the majority seems to have forgotten that in the end, those who with fine incomes indulged in the luxury and even they guarded their silk threads.

It is believed, however, by those who balance conditions, that the American woman can continue to indulge herself in the wearing of silk because woolen will be needed by our government or one across the sea. Cotton things are expensive and will become more so, because the raw material is largely wanted by all countries. So it may turn out to be a good economy's sake. There is also reason to believe that satin and velvet will be in strong demand for the winter.

FOR BOTH SLIM AND STOUT
Bodice Tied in Back Is of Advantage Because Either Figure Can Make Use of It.

Just as it became almost certain that nothing new could be originated in the matter of concealing the actual measurement of the middle of the body, the bodice tied in the back made its first appearance, says the New York Evening Sun.

The advantage of it rested in its possibilities for both the slim and the stout. Either figure could make use of it, because it virtually covered up whatever there was. Its careless wrinkles suggested grace even where grace was not. They left the observer wondering whether thinness or fullness rested below.

Blue Satin and White Silk Jersey.
A frock with a coat to match is of dark blue satin combined with white silk jersey embroidered in blue, the latter used for the trimming section of the coat also for the bodice except shoulder straps of blue and silver tulle. There is a hom of tulle on the bottom of the skirt about four inches wide, and it is heavily embroidered in silk floss and silver thread to match the bodice in colors and design.

Elastic Shirred Camisole.
For evening wear and beneath sheer summer frocks camisoles of Italian jersey silk or flesh-colored wash satin are made all in one, slipped over the head and secured round the waist and the top by broad elastic bands run through lace or silk web casing.

A New Evening Dress.
A new evening dress is made on empire lines and depends for its loveliness on its simplicity. There is a skirt of the softest chambray, hung from a slightly raised waist line. It is gathered, but is not cut on very full lines, and this is a little longer than skirts have been throughout the past winter. The bodice is a band of broadened velvet in several shades of blue, with a little deep rose or perhaps crimson in the pattern and occasional threads of silver. This velvet forms wide of the coat also for the bodice except shoulder straps of blue and silver tulle. There is a hom of tulle on the bottom of the skirt about four inches wide, and it is heavily embroidered in silk floss and silver thread to match the bodice in colors and design.

THIS IS "GINGHAM SUMMER"
Grown-ups Adopt Fabric Which Girls Formerly Outgrew When They Entered Their "Teens."

Time was when the girl grew out of gingham about her twelfth or thirteenth year—when she began to adopt the styles of grownup girlhood—but this year everybody is going to wear gingham. Undoubtedly this will be chosen back upon as the "gingham summer," so fashionable do these woven, colored cottons promise to be. Gingham is by no means a humble fabric, either, but nothing on earth wears and washes better than handsome gingham. The fine colors endure long after the fabric has worn to shreds. Dainty are the gingham frocks now being made for young girls. Pink and white stripes and green and white stripes are the favorites, with huge collars and deep cuffs of frilled organdie. There are plaid ghingams, too, of bolder design which are being made up into sports frocks with jumpers of plain color.

what is soon to come. They send buyers to Paris in April and receive reports of importance in Paris concerning the performance of the Paris weavers, dyers and ornament makers.

These reports, especially those dealing with the colors for next season, are guides to the disposal of merchandise on hand and the wholesale people are enabled to go ahead on their production of fabrics and gowns for sale next autumn and winter. And the colors, as officially announced, that will rule after this summer are led by six shades of red, called Incognito.

In this dance frock the skirt is of flesh crepe with bands of dyed Madras lace. Cuffs of iridescent beads on metal silk. Shoulder drapery of crepe.

there are six grays called munitons, and several shades of purple under the name of academic. The American navy blue is shown, and under the name of chestnut there are shades of brown. Three quite adorable pinks are promised for evening gowns.

The American manufacturers are quite certain that somber tones in fabrics will prevail after the summer. They think that the state of war will result in the choice by our women of sober clothes, even though they may be expensive ones. France, it is true, went in almost hysterically for dull colors even before a single batch of wounded was brought home, but neither England nor Canada cut out the buying of colorful clothes, nor did the women of those countries seem to think it was necessary to economize.

The English department shops, for instance, had all they could do to supply the immense demands of the thousands of women who came into money suddenly through the high wages paid their husbands or their own suddenly discovered wage-earning capacity.

There is every reason to suppose that when the first excitement of war is over our women will go on buying the kind of clothes they prefer, but the manufacturers have decided that it is best to look forward to somber colors than we have worn.

Another question important to the people who sell apparel has to do with silk. We have been wearing it recklessly, and without regard to the fact that we could have cotton. ## MIDDLE AGE IS BEST PERIOD

Man Need Not Be Too Old at Forty If He Will Make Himself More Useful as He Grows Older.

Too old at forty? That is a wall that goes up all over the world. That is a wall that is the American Magazine says it could be disregarded if people made themselves more useful as they grew older. He writes:

"For man to be too old at forty is not natural. Scientists tell us that the life periods of man compare with the life history of the race.

"In most businesses and professions the period of mature manhood is commonly the period of great skill. The body still retains its elasticity; the training and acquired good habits count in daily work; experience now begins to return dividends. The individual develops common sense, conservation and deliberation. He is less likely to be swayed by the primitive emotions of younger life. Well-aid plans mature; returns from previous investments in time, labor and money begin to come in.

"But it is during this period that the competition of newer workers in the same field begins to be felt. The apprentice in the trades, and the student in the schools, work to get a foothold in competition with the established worker. And what is of vital importance—the beginner is willing to work much cheaper than the experienced man. Thus, experience must guard against the under-cut.

"It is in this period that the greatest displacement occurs. The unprogressive, the dissipated, the timorous, are pushed aside to make room for those having more enterprise."

The gift of reading is not very common but very generally understood. It consists, first of all, in a vast intellectual endowment—a free grace. I find I must call it—by a man rises to understand that he is not punctually right, nor those from whom he differs absolutely wrong. He may hold dogmas, he may hold them passionately, and he may know that others hold them but calmly, or hold them differently, or hold them not at all. Well, if he has the gift of reading, these others will be full of meat for him. They will see the other side of propositions and the other side of virtues. The need not change his dogma for that, he may change his reading of that dogma, and he must supplement and correct his deductions from it. A human truth, which is always very much a lie, hides as much of life as it displays. It is men who hold another truth, or as it seems to us, perhaps, a dangerous lie, who can extend our restricted field of knowledge, and cause our drowsy consciousness. Something that seems quite new, or that seems insolently false or dangerous, is the test of a reader. If he tries to see what it means, what truth it carries, if he is hurt or offended, or exults upon his author's folly, he had better take to the daily papers; he will never be a reader.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Seeking Permission.
Old John Gargyle lived only for his garden. It was to him what a growing son is to other men.

At the end of it stood a telephone post, and the other morning Gargyle watched with feelings of horror a telephone mechanic climb his back wall.

He descended into the garden, bringing with him about a dozen loose bricks, and fell full length into a bed of sweet peas.

He picked himself up, dragged a heavy ladder across a path of lettuce and dropped it into a cucumber frame. Then he took a short cut, in his habitual haste, across some vacant beds where many precious bulbs were lying.

Finally, after slipping over a clump of primroses, he appeared under the dining-room window, where Gargyle stood in speechless fury.

"Sense me, sir," he remarked, "that the telephone people are very particular about us trespassing on private ground where we have fixtures. Can I have permission to enter your garden, sir?"

A Financier.
Father gave George and Pauline each a quarter with stipulation that the money should not be spent foolishly. When George arrived home that evening with a couple of tops, a sack of "combs," a few "bunnies," a box of paint, some candy and a squirt gun, his father took him to task.

"George, didn't I tell you very plainly that you were not to spend your money foolishly?"

"Yes, dad, but I didn't. See, here's my money."

"Where's Scott? How did you come by these things, then? You didn't steal them, I hope?"

"Course not, dad," answered George, reassuringly, "you see, I just spent sister's quarter."—Indianapolis Star.

Fights.
"Fights," said the would-be philosopher, "are largely a matter of newspaper elaboration. There is one kind which occurs among men of high intelligence standing wherein the newspapers give detailed details of the struggle. At the time the fight was waged in the senate, a description of the exchange of blows and how the other senators sought to separate the belligerents, followed by a biography of the combatants, including their struggle for fame, photographs of the old home place and their careers as youthful masters of fistfights. Then there is the other kind regarding which the judges merely say, 'Ten dollars and costs.'"—Indianapolis Star.

Damascus Blades.
A writer in a foreign journal points out that, according to Jean Jacques Perrot, the well-known French author living in the eighteenth century, Damascus blades were probably hardened in often times by a powerful blast of cold air issuing from a narrow passage between two walls specially built for the purpose.

Highly Estimable.
"Half a loaf is better than no bread," said the philosopher.

"There's no doubt about the respect to which half a loaf is entitled," replied the plain person. "It costs as much as the whole loaf used to."

to the city to seek his fortune. No word of love had passed between them, but they had mutually shared a companionship that had made of half a dozen brief weeks in their lives a period of delight for both.

"I expect to make something of myself in the city," Leslie had told Netta at parting. "I expect to return at the end of a year. I hope you will think of me once in a while," and an earnest glance in return for his own made him believe that he would be welcome on his return.

In his heart was the full ardor of love. To his lips there almost came the words that Netta would have been glad to hear. They were repressed, however. Netta lived wretchedly with her old uncle, who was poor. Netta had many suitors. Dayton had nothing to say to her. He was in no position to marry. He determined to make his way in the world. Then he would return and ask Netta to become his wife, able also to care for the helpless relative whom Netta would not desert.

And now he had come back—almost what a sad return of the wanderer, for he had brought with him neither money nor promise, nor prospect for the future. He had lost the few hundred dollars he had in a little business with a partner who had not only robbed him, but had defrauded their creditors. Then he had been deceived, leaving Dayton to hear the clamor of the hour, accused of fraud, almost threatened with prosecution, a pauper. After that there was no place for him amid the sneers and suspicions of the community that ruthlessly discarded an innocent man. Like a thief he had been driven from the city. In the night Leslie stole back to the little town that held the old woman he loved. He met an old friend secretly, who had his half-finished suit with him. Netta was the sole support of the house. An invalid, a widow, Mr. Rodney, with two little children, had become boarders at the Deane home and Netta was working hard to keep the household from falling into ruin.

Then came the impulse to Dayton to see Netta once more. If only a distant glimpse, and then to go away to some remote place where he was not known and forget her if he could. And now he was speeding away like a hunted fugitive. He quickly left the town and bade farewell to all hopes of ever seeing Netta again.

A month later, in a home newspaper which he happened to run across, Dayton read an item which told that Miss Netta Deane was married to Mr. James Rodney, the invalid guest of the Deane home. With only a shattered romance and bitter memories of his blighted business career, Dayton roved here and there for a year and finally settled down on an island off the coast of Maine, having charge of a sailing plant.

His one pleasure when off duty was to row along the shore, feeling alone and rested to be away from the city rush and men. Two years passed by. He had saved up some money. At times a powerful impulse influenced him to go back to his former village home and see his old-time friends, but the thought that Netta was surely lost to him stood always in the way of carrying out that plan.

There was a summer resort a few miles down the shore, the Deane home. One blustery afternoon Dayton was walking down the shore near to the great beach hotel, when he halted as he noticed quite in the distance a woman rushing in his direction, her manner evidencing the most intense excitement and distress. Her eyes were fixed seawards. A glance thitherward apprised Dayton of the source of her perturbation. A frail shore boat was drifting beyond the great breakers and beside it, clinging to the rail, were two little children.

Apparently they had been playing in the boat inside the beach breakwater and the momentarily furious waves were driving them further and further out to sea. In an instant Dayton tore off his coat and plunged into the surf.

A wild, brainless scream rang from the lips of the running woman as the boat gave a shuddering lurch over and its two helpless occupants were flung into the boiling surf. A superb swimmer, although battling tremendous difficulties, Dayton reached first one and then the other of the imperiled children. He struck out for shore, one clinging about his neck as he directed, the other, quite insensible, sustained on his arm.

He was well-nigh exhausted as he struggled up the beach. His eyes were filled with the salt sea water did not clearly make out the frantic woman, who rushed toward the two little girls and took the one overcome child in her arms. Totally collapsed, Dayton took to a sand hammock, all her insensible of his surroundings for the moment. People were rushing down the beach and there was an uproar and turmoil. The two little children were whisked away in an ambulance. The proprietor of the hotel assisted Dayton to his feet.

"You'll come with me and get off these wet togs," he declared authoritatively. "Mr. Dayton, you are a brave, genuine man! Outside of saving two little children, you have saved the reputation of my place here."

Dayton was too weak and unmoved to resist the kindly intervention of his grateful host. His rehabilitation was solicitously looked to. He was provided with dry apparel, it was ordered that an auto should take him back home and he was leaving the hotel, when his proprietor came rushing after him.

"You—You!" uttered a vibrating voice, as Dayton was ushered into an apartment where stood the lady of the house, and he stayed in wonder at his old love. "Oh," she cried, taking both his hands in her own, "have you been these long many months?"

"Hiding myself, I fancy," rejoined Dayton, with a hard bitter laugh.

"And I—I have found you!" cried Netta.

"Crack!"

There was a flash at the open window, a sharp, snappy report, and the man who was lurking in the shadow of a high blue bush turned and ran like a whitehead.

"Oh, uncle!" exclaimed Netta Deane, springing to her feet and seizing and drawing back the trembling old hand that had a smoking revolver.

"I didn't hit him, whoever he was," announced Gideon Deane, "I just scared him. Frowlers—burglars! Why, they stole our new buckskin last week, and as you know some of the washing of Mr. Rodney and his children disappeared from the line last night."

"It must be those tramps," suggested Netta. "Then, restless and disturbed by the exciting episode of the moment, she passed from the room out of the house and walked around the garden."

Just at the edge of the big blue bush Netta stooped to pick up a handkerchief. It was of large size, clean and folded except where one edge had been crushed into the fiddling lumb by a human foot. Doubtless the trumper had dropped it in his flight. Netta opened it and held it in the focus of the lamp-light that streamed through the open window.

She uttered a sudden half-suppressed cry. Her face pale and her lips quivered. In one corner of the handkerchief two initials were interwoven: "L. D." And well she knew they stood for Leslie Dayton, and since still, for her own busy hands had six months previous embroidered those initials on half-a-dozen handkerchiefs presented to Leslie Dayton on his twenty-second birthday.

Her breath came fast, she thought rapidly. The sequence to her discovery was patent. Leslie Dayton was the prowler who had escaped the marksmanship of her suspicious-minded, excitable uncle.

Then the tears rushed to her eyes. In retrospection she went over the weary months since Dayton had gone

FOUR WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

No Relief—Mrs. Brown Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"For years I suffered so sometimes it seemed as though I could not stand it any longer. It was all in my lower organs. At times I could hardly walk, for I stepped on a little stone I would almost faint. One day I did faint and the doctor came. I was taken to the hospital and stayed four weeks but when I came home I would faint just the same and had the same pains.

A friend who is a nurse asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it that very day for I was suffering a great deal. It has already done me more good than the hospital. To anyone who is suffering as I was my advice is to stop in the first drug-store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before you go home."—Mrs. W. C. Brown, 2844 W. 12th St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Let folks step on your feet hereafter; wear shoes a size smaller if you like, for corns will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this Cincinnati authority.
"He says that a few drops of a drug called Frezzone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out."
This drug dries at once and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding skin. A small bottle of Frezzone obtained at any drug store will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

If your druggist hasn't stocked this new drug yet, tell him to get a small bottle of Frezzone for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

Blue Blood.
Bushrod was establishing a pigeon coop of his own, emulating his neighbor, Bill Hite. In arranging the financial promotion of this venture, he went to his mother.

"Mother," he said, "I want a dollar to buy a pigeon."
Mother thought a dollar a rather high price for a pigeon, with common birds averaging ten cents.

"But, mother," Bushrod said, earnestly, "you don't understand. This is a pedigree pigeon. With its pedigree it's cheap at a dollar."

Bushrod finally wheedled his mother out of the dollar and left to buy his blooded bird. He returned with the pigeon and a scrap of crumpled paper in his pocket.

"Mother," he said, "this is the pedigree."
On the crumpled scrap of paper was written:

"Grandmother, unknown. Grandmother, unknown. Father, unknown. Mother, Bill Hite's pigeon."

MANY NEW COLORS FOR LATE SUMMER

Six Shades of Red to Lead, It Is Officially Announced.

SOMBER TONES MAY PREVAIL

Manufacturers Think War Will Cause American Women to Choose Dull Clothes Though They May Be Expensive.

New York.—The manufacturers are exhibiting their usual interest in the colors which may come into fashion next autumn.

To the layman, this forebodingness seems to be vitally wasted, but the man behind the business knows that now is the appointed hour to look with sharpened eyes into the near future.

Merchandise is a stupendous bulk of material that quickly goes into profit or loss. It makes or mays a merchant and affects thousands who owe to his cleverness their chance to live in comfort.

If he does not look ahead with an eye and mind trained to take into account every minor and major happening, he goes down into debt and carries the thousands with him.

When those who are most interested in the production of women's apparel because of the strain caused by the war and the feeling of false economy, say among themselves that this color and that fabric will have no chance for popularity next winter, then they decide a momentous issue.

They realize that the public must be induced to buy while the buying is good; while it can make use of the pieces of merchandise that exist and which may soon cease to be worth while. The public, itself, wants to know the prospects for the success of every garment. If its service is to be of short duration, then wisdom dictates that it must be made to yield every ounce of service now.

Many of us would willingly buy a garment, or a piece of cloth, if we were candidly told that it would not serve us long, but that it would last for another three months, giving that as the reason for its reduction from the original price. But we feel cheated and humiliated when, after buying something that was supposedly lasting on the hill of popularity, we find that it is quickly going down hill.

Wearily Quickly of Clothes.
Most of us are guilty—if crime it be—of wearing of what we possess in the way of clothes before they have given us value for money expended, and we willingly give them up under the pressure of an excuse that will satisfy our conscience. If we buy often and without undue expense, we right happily fling away the purchase when its time comes to go.

It is this psychological truth that lies down deep in the spirits of the majority, that makes it possible for the department shops to reap a monthly fortune each season out of the modishly cut and cheaply priced garments.

There is every reason to suppose that when the first excitement of war is over our women will go on buying the kind of clothes they prefer, but the manufacturers have decided that it is best to look forward to soberer colors than we have worn.

Will Silks Grow in Strength?
Another question important to the people who sell apparel has to do with silk. We have been wearing it recklessly, and without regard to the fact that we could have cotton. All classes have indulged in silk weaves for every kind of garment, and the majority seems to have forgotten that in the near past only those with fine incomes indulged in that luxury, and even they wore their silk things.

It is believed, however, by those who balance conditions, that the American woman can continue to indulge herself in the wearing of silk because woolen will be needed by our government or one across the sea. Cotton things are abundant and will become more so, but the raw material is sorely wanted by all countries. So it may turn out to be silk for economy's sake. There is also reason to believe that satin and velvet will be in strong demand for the winter.

FOR BOTH SLIM AND STOUT
Bodice Tied in Back Is of Advantage Because Either Figure Can Make Use of It.

Just as it became almost certain that nothing new could be originated in the matter of concealing the actual measurement of the middle of the body, the bodice tied in the back made its first appearance, says the New York Evening Sun.

The advantage of it rested in its possibilities for both the slim and the stout. Either figure could make use of it, because it virtually covered up whatever there was. Its careless wrinkles suggested grace even where grace there was not. They left the observer wondering whether thinness or fullness rested below.

Blue Satin and White Silk Jersey.
A fine blue satin coat to match is of the softest chambray, hung from a slightly raised waist line. It is gathered, but is not cut on very full lines, and this is a little longer than skirts have been throughout the past winter.

The bodice is a band of broadened velvet in several shades of blue, with a little deep rose or perhaps crimson in the pattern and occasional threads of silver. This velvet forms a wide circle that is all the bodice excepting shoulder straps of blue and silver tulle. There is a hem of tulle on the bottom of the skirt about four inches wide, and it is heavily embroidered in silk floss and silver thread to match the bodice in colors and design.

Elastic Shirred Camisole.
For evening wear and beneath sheer summer frocks camisoles of Italian jersey silk or flesh-colored wash satin are made all in one, slipped over the head and secured round the waist and at the top by broad elastic bands run through lace or silk webbing.

Willing at Any Cost.

"Half a loaf is better than no bread," said the philosopher.

"There's no doubt about the respect to which half a loaf is entitled," replied the plain person. "It costs as much as a whole loaf used to."

Didn't Recognize It.
When a baby sister came to Harold's house he asked his father how she found her way there. The father explained that a stork had brought her. Son, with a gleam of intelligence, answered, "I saw that thing flying around, but I thought it was a buzzard."

Future Judgments.
It is rather regrettable that people are so much concerned in matters of art, over the agreement of their judgments with the judgments of the wise men of the future. It is really something of such very small importance. The proper way to relate oneself to pictures is just to look at them—often, if one is interested, occasionally if one is not.—The New Republic.

Not Always.
"It's the thing we haven't that makes us unhappy," remarked the philosopher. "How about the thing we have?" suggested the mere man.—Minneapolis Tribune.

MIDDLE AGE IS BEST PERIOD

Man Need Not Be Too Old at Forty If He Will Make Himself More Useful as He Grows Older.

Too old at forty! That is a wall that always goes up throughout the country. But a writer in the American Magazine says it could be disregarded if people made themselves more useful as they grew older. He writes:

"For man to be too old at forty is not natural. Scientists tell us that the life periods of man compare with the life history of the race.

"In most businesses and professions the period of mature manhood is commonly the period of great skill. The body still retains its elasticity; previous training and acquired habits count in daily work; experience now begins to return dividends.

The individual develops common sense, conservation, and deliberation. He is less likely to be swayed by the primitive emotions of younger life. Well-laid plans mature; returns from previous investments in time, labor and money begin to come in.

"But it is during this period that the competition of never workers in the same field begins to be felt. The apprentices in the trades, and students in the schools begin to get a foothold in competition with the established worker. And what is of vital importance—the beginner is willing to work much cheaper than the experienced man. His inexperience must guard against the under-cut."

"It is in this period that the greatest displacement occurs. The unprogressive, the dissipated, the timorous, are pushed aside to make room for those having more enterprise."

The Reader.
The gift of being is not very common, nor very generally understood. It consists, first of all, in a vast intellectual endowment—a free grace. I find I must call it—by which a man rises to understand that he is not punctually right, nor those from whom he differs absolutely wrong. He may hold dogmas, he may know that things are, and he may know that things should be, but he does not know that things are different, or hold them not at all. Well, if he has the gift of reading, these others will be full of meat for him. They will see the other side of propositions and the other side of virtues. He need not change his dogma for that, and he may know that things are different, or hold them not at all. Well, if he has the gift of reading, these others will be full of meat for him.
